UNDER REVIEW	The Local Politics of Border Control: Transnational Communities, Resistance, and Accommodation.
WORKS IN PROGRESS	The Local Politics of Border Control. Dissertation. – This book-length project, supported by a Graduate Research Fellowship from the National Science Foundation, studies the intersection of borders, human security, and state-making. I take up the challenge of theorizing borderlands as unique geopolitical spaces and local communities as central actors. The theory explains local contestation and accommodation over contemporary border hardening, how local populations psychologically adapt to changing borders, and the influence of bottom-up demands on the content of state policy. The mixed-methods design encompasses global quantitative analyses with original geospatial data, qualitative fieldwork at the United States–Mexico border, and observational and experimental survey tests.
